REACH

Responsible European & African Changemakers

REACH project is a step further to the cooperation, development and youth empowerment. Volunteering is one of the most rewarding experiences young people can get. The project is innovative in the connection of three so far “unrelated” topics being it: development aid, volunteering and social entrepreneurship. In this perspective the project would contribute changing the perception of the development aid as such, and in the broader sense to change the view on reducing of the poverty in the African countries. Local people understand their needs much better than the foreign aid can provide to them by donations, however lots of case missed the human resources which could bring their ideas even further as well as the promotion.
